DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3, 5-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Waguespack (USPN 5863102).

Waguespack teaches a device for securing the head of a toothbrush in a processing machine. There is a retaining part (44, 46) with a retaining flange (figure 5 shows the flange at the top of the retaining part). There is a supporting surface (figure 6, bottom of retaining part) integrally formed on the flange (all one piece).

With regards to claim 2, the retaining part has a clamping surface (side edge as shown in figure 5) which preferably follows the supporting surface, runs transversely to the same and interacts with a peripheral edge of the toothbrush head.

With regards to claim 3, the clamping surface, in cross section, is concave (figure 5 and 6).

With regards to claim 5, the retaining flange, on its side which is directed away from the supporting surface has a further supporting surface (surface located under flange that overlaps the top surface of the toothbrush head).

Art Unit: 3723

With regards to claim 6, the supporting surface and if appropriate, the clamping surface and the further supporting surface are formed to mate with the bristle carrier (figure 6 shows the device in use).

With regards to claim 7, there are two retaining parts (44, 46) which can be moved relative to one another between a retaining position and a receiving position.

With regards to claim 8, the retaining flanges of the two retaining parts are mirror-symmetrical design (figure 4).

With regards to claim 9, the retaining flanges are spaced from one another in the retaining position (figure 4).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Art Unit: 3723

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Waguespack (UPSN 5863102).

Waguespack teach all the essential elements of the claimed invention however fails to teach the wall thickness of the flange. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the free end of the flange so that it has a wall thickness of at least 1mm since the only difference between the prior art and the claims is a recitation of relative dimensions of the claimed device. A device having the claimed relative dimensions would not perform differently than the prior art device and therefore, the claimed invention is not patentable over the prior art.
